What Continuing the Conversation with Sam Schwartz, P.E.

You're warmly invited to bring your own brown bag lunch and join "Gridlock Sam" - former Traffic Commissioner of New York City, as he returns to Tampa to continue the traffic conversation in collaboration with the Tampa Innovation Alliance. An expert at getting people out of their cars and into other forms of transportation, he is also proficient at moving those people who remain in their cars more swiftly and safely.

Mr. Schwartz will discuss how his ideas on potential landscape and traffic design applications can be applied, particularly in the areas around USF with focus on major streets such as Fowler Avenue and others. His creative problem-solving for seemingly intractable situations has created many win-win-win situations, whereby traffic moves better, pedestrians are safer, and the community gains more sidewalk and green space.

President and CEO of Sam Schwartz - a firm that specializes in transportation planning and engineering, Mr. Schwartz also writes columns on traffic for The New York Daily News, the NY Downtown Express and blogs for Engineering News Record.
