| 10 | TOMORROW! #GCSafeStreetsSummit is taking over downtown Tampa, and St. Petersburg Mayor Rick Kriseman will be speaking in the morning during Session 1's Mayors Panel! Last year, St. Pete was given the Silver-level Bicycle Friendly Community (BFCSM) award from the League of American Bicyclists. The City of St. Petersburg, Florida USA has invested over $1 million toward building complete streets by installing 103 flashing pedestrian lights at crosswalks and building 200 curb extensions at corners to slow down vehicles making turns while giving pedestrians more safe walking space. Using data and reports such as the one linked below titled, "Complete Streets for St. Pete - Building a Healthier, Safer City Through Better Street Design," written by Frontier Group and the Florida Consumer Action Network, Mayor Kriseman plans to continue to prioritize complete streets in St. Pete. Find out more at tomorrow morning's session! #VisionZERO813 #VisionZero #HealthyStPete #CompleteStreets | Link | 2/26 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 |

| 15 | What if Hurricane Irma had hit us at Category 5? What if our transportation network was damaged or destroyed? What transportation assets would we repair or replace first? On March 1st and 2nd, Hillsborough/Manatee/Sarasota planners and staff participated in an All-Hazards Recovery Plan Training, presented by Portland State University's best researchers. We were one of six regions nationwide selected to be part of this research pilot project funded by the Federal Transit Administration in partnership with the National Association of MPOs. During the course, the Transportation Research and Education Center of Portland State University trained our planners on how to enhance our regional transportation recovery plans. Many thanks to the Hillsborough County Planning Commission, Hillsborough Area Regional Transit, Hillsborough Emergency Operations, City of Tampa Government, Tampa Bay Regional Planning Council (TBRPC), Sarasota Manatee Metropolitan Planning Organization, Sarasota and Manatee Emergency Operations, Sarasota County Area Transit, Center for Urban Transportation Research - CUTR, Portland State University, FDOT West Central - Tampa Area and FDOT Central Florida! | Photo | 3/5 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 |

| 19 | What's it like to go carless in Tampa? 🚲 Karen Kress of Tampa's Downtown (the Tampa Downtown Partnership) wrote about her experience getting to and from work outside of her "metal box" during #CommuterChallenge18! "Although I love to ride my bike (and do frequently for quick trips around downtown), I find the 7-mile ride into work much more enjoyable than the return trip. The Heights really are uphill from downtown! I found that it takes me almost exactly as much time to bike as to use the bus. It is astonishing how many people I say good morning to when not driving solo in a metal box." Way to go, Karen! | Link | 3/19 | 167 | 279 | 20 | 13 |

| 20 | Great news for resiliency planning in Tampa Bay! The Hillsborough MPO, in collaboration with Forward Pinellas, Pasco MPO, Tampa Bay Regional Planning Council, and FDOT West Central - Tampa Area, is excited to announce that we have been selected for the Federal Highway Administration's Resilience and Durability Pilot Program! The study will take 18-24 months and result in recommendations for strengthening our highway, transit, and other regional transportation systems that will be incorporated into the MPO's primary planning document, the 2045 Long Range Transportation Plan (LRTP). For more information, contact Allison Yeh at 273-3774 x 351 or yeha@plancom.org. | Link | 3/20 | 459 | 648 | 67 | 52 |

| 31 | This past semester, the MPO worked with USF students in the Sustainable Transportation course. Senior Planner Wade Reynolds worked with Dr. Rob Bertini and students to prepare proposals for sustainable transportation on West Columbus Drive. Their final projects are amazing! We look forward to doing more projects with University of South Florida students in the future! | 32 | What a successful program! The MPO's Executive Planner Michele Oglivie worked with the Coalition of Community Gardens and the Healthiest Cities & Counties Challenge Garden Steps Project to host an event providing fresh vegetables from the community garden, raffle prizes, and a fresh herb giveaway to the Senior Connections Center's cooking demonstration in East Tampa! The seniors involved expressed appreciation for the information they learned, including new easy ways to cook fresh vegetables, the importance of growing their own vegetables, how to roast their vegetables instead of frying them, and the benefits of eating more fresh vegetables to better manage their health! #GardenSteps #HealthyCitiesChallenge | Photo | 4/27 | 176 | 263 | 16 | 11 |
